Comparative View of the number of Names contained in the Directories of the following years.

Years.	Editors.	Number of Names.	Pages.
1794	Hardie	8304	232
1806	Robinson	10668	314
1807	Robinson	12348	384
1809	Robinson	11760	360
1810	Robinson	12936	362

1811	Robinson & Paxton	17300	520
1813	Paxton (present work)	20160	624

It appears by this statement, that there was no improvement in the Directory during the years it was published by Mr. Robinson alone.

The present Directory contains 20160 names, which is nearly twice the number that appeared in Robinson's for 1810.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IN offering this work to the Public, the Editor does not think it necessary to enter into any argument to prove the utility of a correct Directory, in a city of such extent and commercial importance as that of Philadelphia, but relies on the evidence which experience must have brought to the Citizens, and particularly to men of business, not only of the convenience, but the necessity of such a companion. The editor, fully persuaded of this fact, and seeing that no such work appeared for the year 1812, as promised by Mr. Robinson; being also seconded by the solicitations of a number of respectable citizens, was induced to undertake that arduous and laborious task, and hopes he has completed it, as far as its nature will admit. How far however he has succeeded, the Public will candidly determine. He flatters himself it will be found to contain more than has been formerly given in works of this description, as no pains have been spared to render it replete with interesting and useful information. From the particular knowledge of the city and suburbs he acquired in researches for materials collected for his Alphabetical Plan of Philadelphia, which he published in 1810, which was further exercised in his adjunct publication of the "Annual Directory for 1811," with Mr. Robinson, he thinks himself warranted in promising a Directory more complete and free from errors than any that have heretofore been published in this City, and containing many more names; the arrangement of which is much improved, being carefully alphabeted in the christian as well as in the surnames, having references between those of nearly the same sound, which will add much to the facility of finding required names. In former works of this kind, the names of persons residing in Kensington and west of Broad street, have been alphabeted in a list separate from that of the main body; in the present, the whole are compiled in one alphabetical arrangement, the utility of which will be obvious to all. A perusal of the "Directions to the Reader," will render every part perfectly clear to the understanding. The solicitude of the Editor to make this work as interesting as possible, has induced him to annex a large and comprehensive appendix, the materials for which were not collected without much labour and expence; the statistical table alone, giving an enumeration of the buildings in each street, &c. having employed him for nearly two months. It is expected it will prove satisfactory to the citizens generally. A correct list of the war duties, with Custom House remarks, being deemed important, are also inserted, with a collection of other information.

The collection of names for this work having been commenced on the first day of last October, those persons who have changed their residence since that period, will not have cause to censure the Editor for any error which may have arisen out of this act; notice having been given, in all the public newspapers, requesting them to send in their addresses for correction: the frequency of removals rendering it impossible for the editor, without such assistance, to make a correct return.

If other errors should be discovered, without which it is impossible to present a work of this nature, the public, it is presumed, will attribute it to a proper cause: many surnames of different orthography sounding alike, and the information obtained repecting orthography, names, and professions being often vague or incorrect, which it is impossible entirely to obviate. The Editor takes this opportunity to tender his thanks to the numerous subscribers who have patronized the work, and begs leave to inform them that it is his intention to publish it annually. As the demand in this city will not support a competition, if they find his work worthy of encouragement, he solicits their future support in preference to any competitor who may arise, which he will endeavour to merit by his attention to their service. He is induced to make this seemingly unreasonable request, as a divided support would probably oblige him to relinquish his intention to repeat the publication.

JOHN A. PAXTON.

ENUMERATION
BUILDINGS OF DIFFERENT KINDS, IN THE
CITY AND SUBURBS OF PHILADELPHIA.

The following correct enumeration, taken the latter end of the year 1810 by John A. Paxton (the editor), exhibits the brick and frame dwellings, store houses, manufacturing and public buildings, workshops, stables, &c. in each street, lane, alley, &c. with a distinct account of the situation and number of new buildings erected in the year (1810)—It likewise shows an abstract account of the whole number of buildings in the compactly built parts of the different districts, viz. City, Northern Liberties, Penn Township, Kensington, Southwark, Moyamensing and Passyunk.

The buildings in courts, not noticed in this table, are cast into the streets, &c. on which they open.—It must be recollected that the streets with north or south attached to them, are enumerated together;—for example, Second street, from one extremity to the other.

VIEWS of the MANUFACTURES in the UNITED STATES; derived from the returns made to the Treasury, pursuant to an Act of Congress, passed May 1st, 1810. In a letter from S. L. MITCHILL, to the Hon. THOMAS NEWTON, dated Washington, January 7, 1812.

DEAR SIR,

The act further to alter and amend the act providing for the third census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, passed May 1, 1810, made it the duty of the several marshals, secretaries, and their assistants, while they were taking the census of the people, to take also, under the direction of the secretary of the treasury, and according to the instructions he should give, an account of the several manufacturing establishments and manufactures within their several districts, territories, and divisions. It was directed that the whole of the information so collected should be returned to the secretary of the treasury. It was enacted too that for such additional services, suitable compensation should hereafter be made by law. The money appropriated for counting the inhabitants and registering their manufactures, was one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which is understood to have been more than enough to defray the whole cost.

Agreebly to the request of the committee of commerce and manufactures, I have paid some attention to the returns made by the marshals on the state of manufactures in our country. They abound with information; though some of them are executed with greatly more care and exactness than others. Massachusetts appears to have been done with remarkable correctness and method, by counties and towns. The partial accounts are followed by a general recapitulation; and the whole is an example of order and perspicuity exceedingly creditable to Mr. Prince. South Carolina, on the contrary, is an example of carelessness beyond any of the returns. It is deficient in many important respects: and seems to have been sent away in such a hurry, that the columns of figures are not added together into an aggregate sum at the foot.

The information collected in the other states, evinces intermediate degrees of observation and accuracy. Yet it ought to be mentioned of New-Jersey, a state famous for industry and manufactures, that the county abstracts only are forwarded, without any summary whatever of the whole. To render the statement instructive, the reader must bestow the labour of forming the general conclusion; and in attempting this, he will discover frequent instances of incompleteness or inaccuracy. With this may be contrasted the return from Pennsylvania, which evinces an extent of research, on the part of Mr. Smith, honourable to him as an officer, and exhibits the manual arts and trades of the commonwealth to which he belongs, in a highly advantageous light. Their numbers and kinds are displayed with extraordinary detail, both as to the branches carried on and capital employed.

I nevertheless undertook the task of making a general abstract, and of deducing a sort of comprehensive table. I began with the return of Mr. Curtenius, from New-York, and entered the total sums of his several articles in one line upon a sheet of paper. There I recorded the 867 tanneries, 491 distilleries, 42 breweries, 33 068 looms, 467 fulling-mills, 443 carding machines, 26 cotton manufactories, 28 paper-mills, 124 hatteries, 6 glass-houses, 2 powder-mills, 18 rope-walks, 10 refineries of sugar, 28 oil-mills, 11 blast-furnaces, 10 air-furnaces, 44 cut-nail manufactories, and 48 forges, with some other things, particularly the cloths manufactured in that extensive commonwealth. On attempting, however, to arrange the other returns under the same heads, I found great difficulties in the way. For, though Connecticut, North Carolina, Kentucky, and indeed most of the states and territories, corresponded very well to a certain number of titles, yet many of the latter were so different and various, that it was impossible to class them under corresponding heads.

There were further difficulties. Maine was observed by a different officer from him who took the census of Massachusetts. The return from that district is so unlike the one made by the other marshal, that it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to make them correspond and harmonize. I despaired, therefore, of effecting a reconcilement in the returns from the two parts of Massachusetts. Again; Tennessee is in very much the same situation. The marshal of the western district of that state has made a valuable return; his colleague of the eastern district has not equalled him in particularizing and distributing his subject, and besides, has pursued so different a plan that it is not practicable to adapt them.

I might easily make other observations. The return from Rhode-Island might be quoted for its minuteness and accuracy. But, notwithstanding the appearance of observation and fidelity which pervades it, there is almost or quite an impossibility of adjusting its materials with those contained in the other returns. The like remark applies to Ohio, though its return contains indications of perspicacity and intelligence; and to Michingan, whose secretary, Atwater, has furnished a paper which, though small, is a moddle of perspicuity and neatness.

After several attempts to arrange and methodize the materials, so as to bring them into one compendious view, I became convinced that my labours were fruitless, and abandoned the undertaking. It is certainly a subject of regret that a grand total cannot be formed of all the manufacturing establishments in the nation. Yet we may rejoice that so much has been done. When the next census shall be taken, we may be more successful. An exact schedule of all the subjects of inquiry ought to be formed. These, if transmitted to the proper officers, would direct their attention to certain aad definite objects. The returns would thereby be rendered uniform, and capable of being added up into one great account, exhibiting in a concordant and uniform manner all the subjects inquired into throughout the states and territories.

Some most valuable information is derived from these returns, incomplete and heterogeneous as they are. Under the head of sheep, for example, we learn that Vermont contains a stock of 450,000; Massachusetts 399,182; Connecticut 400,000; and Pennsylvania 1,466,918. Among these are included the individuals of the merino breed, and of the mixed race derived from their communication with the ordinary kind. From these premises we deduce favourable conclusions as to the food derived from their carcasses, the leather from their skins, and above all the clothing from their fleeces.

The number of looms, and of carding and spinning machines, almost exceeds belief, as does also the amount of cloth prepared by the inhabitants. The woollen manufacture has prodigiously increased, as well in the quality and variety, as in the quantity of the goods. Such advances are already made toward supplying domestic fabrics enough to clothe the people, that but few years more will be necessary, under the existing commercial restrictions, to effect that important object.

The progress made in the preparation of cotton twist, and of the articles into which it may be manufactured by the weaver, has been still more rapid and surprising. From a perusal of these papers, the most comfortable assurance is derived of the amount and fitness of these products of the loom, to afford a covering to man, and furniture for his habitation.

The fabrics of flax are also so far extended, and so much on the increase, as to excite the most cheering prospects of an augmented supply to our citizens, from their own proper labour and skill. The superior excellence of homespun linen is the strongest of all recommendations.

These papers contain a more distinct and interesting exhibition than we ever had before of the saltpetre manufactured in the states. Thus Virginia prepares 59,175 pounds; Kentucky 201,937; Massachusetts 23,600; East Tennessee, 17,534, and West Tennessee, chiefly in Jackson, Warren, White, and Smith counties, 144,895; making nearly half a million pounds of home made nitre, as good as that usually brought from foreign parts. It is alleged, the quantity may be increased to any desirable amount. The connexion of this with numerous manufactories of gun powder, puts us quite at our ease as to the nitrate of potash, and to the means we possess of compounding it.

The manufacture of straw is eminently worthy of notice. In Massachusetts, where the forming of bonnets from that material seems to have first begun, the yearly amount of sales is not less than $551,988. The manufacture of straw bonnets has been since undertaken in Connecticut, and produces the yearly value of $ 27,100; and it is worthy of remark, that the labours of two women in New Jersey, in the same way, yielded them $ 140, amounting to the sum of $ 579,228, for the single article of straw bonnets.

Nor is the preparation of sugar from the juice of the maple tree unimportant. Of this domestic sweet, Ohio produces, in a twelve-month, 3,023,806 pounds; Kentucky, 2,471,647; Vermont, 1,200,000; and East Tennessee, 162,340: making a quantity of nearly seven million pounds in these states only, wherein the returns may be conceived to be greatly within the truth.

Works in horn, ivory, and shell, have made a progress that is worthy of notice. The combs, for instance, which Connecticut prepares annually for market, are estimated at $70,000; Massachusetts $80,624; and Pennsylvania $6,240; equalling a sum of $ 156,864.

I may mention too the abundance of copperas which West Tennessee and Vermont afford. The quantity per annum from the former, is stated at 56,000 lbs.; and from the latter, at 8,000. The quality of these sulphates of iron is declared to be very fine, and that druggists and dyers may be supplied to any demand they may make.

The tanning of skins is displayed, in these surveys, to great advantage. Indeed, among a people who universally wear shoes of leather, and a great part of whose male inhabitants dress in boots, the consumption of that material is extravagant. By admitting hides and peltry free of impost, and laying heavy duties upon the introduction of tanned and rawed leather, congress has given ample protection to the operations of preparing skins for use. But our domestic supplies go far beyond the demand for the feet and legs. Saddlery, harness, and books, are principally supplied from the same internal source, to the great extent of their several demands; and the like may be observed of the supplies for the wants of navigation and military equipments.

A prominent feature in the face of this performance is the number of stills employed in the preparation of ardent spirits. The quantity of ardent spirits annually distilled appears, by the returns, to equal the prodigious amount of twenty-three millions seven hundred and twenty thousand gallons. The extraction of brandy from peaches, of an alkoholic liquid from cider, and of whiskey from rye, and even maize, is carried to this alarming excess. These products of the distilleries are chiefly consumed among ourselves, though a portion of the latter is converted to gin before it reaches the human stomach. While, therefore, we observe the increase of these home-made fluids, we must reflect on their inebriating effects. It cannot be disguised, that their intoxicating quality recommends them to such general employment. Nor ought it to be concealed, than in a country where a gallon of this maddening stimulus can be bought for half a dollar, a gill may be obtained at retail for three cents, and the seller, at the same time, more than double his money. The fondness for this bewitching beverage, and the repugnance to any excise upon it, raise in the mind a curious association between the free use of it and of political freedom. And it deserves the consideration of all the thinking part of society, how far disease, idleness, immorality, and other mischiefs incidental to strong potation, may not degrade freedom to rudeness and something worse.

A few other important objects disclosed by an examination of these papers, remain to be mentioned.

The number of water and horse-mills employed in spinning cotton, on this exhibition, amounted to 330, in the month of August, 1810, and working one hundred thousand spindles. These, on an average, will spin annually between four and five million pounds of yarn; and that yarn would be sufficient to weave eighteen millions of yards of cotton cloth, three quarters of a yard wide. And this is wholly independent of what may be spun in private families, although it makes part of what is wove there.

The fulling mills returned amount to 1630: and the wool-carding machines, going by water, to 1585.

The number of looms returned exceeds 330,000, and the total number of yards of cloth made of wool, cotton, and flax, as returned, exceeds seventy-five millions.

Gun-powder mills are enumerated to the number of 207. Some of these are, indeed, small; but they count, and, in addition to the larger ones, they prepare yearly 1,450,000 pounds of gun-powder.

Five hundred and thirty furnaces, forges, and bloomeries, are enumerated.

The paper mills amount to 190.

I cannot forbear to express the wish, that these important papers may fall into the hands of some person who may have time and ability to derive from them more extensive information than I am able to give you. But until this shall be done, the present communication may serve to afford some idea of the manner in which the marshals have executed their instructions, and of the facts which their returns contain.

Allow me to assure you, once more, of my great esteem and regard.

SAMUEL L. MITCHILL.

Holds four sessions annually, at such times as the mayor, recorder and aldermen shall appoint.

Courts of Oyer and Terminer,

From the American Daily Advertiser.

MR. POULSON,

If you should think the following information relative to the mode of executing, acknowledging, proving, and recording deeds, powers of attorney, &c. according to the laws of Pennsylvania, useful, it is at your service for publication.

Nov. 13, 1812. A. B.

The chief justice and judges of the Supreme Court, the president and associate judges of the Court of Common pleas, and the mayor and recorder of the city of Philadelphia, have power to take the acknowledgment, or probate, of deeds, &c. for lands in any part of the state.

The aldermen of the city of Philadelphia, have power to take the acknowledgment and probate of deeds, &c. for lands lying within the city or county of Philadelphia.

The justices of the peace of the several counties, have power to take the acknowledgment, &c. of deeds for lands lying within their respective counties.

If the wife of a grantor is the party, the judge or justice, &c. taking the acknowledgment, must examine her separate and apart, from her husband, and shall read or otherwise make known to her the full contents of the deed, and on such separate examination, she is required to declare that she did voluntarily, of her own free will and accord, seal and as her act and deed, deliver the same, all which must be certified under the hand and seal of the officer.

Two witnesses are usually required to subscribe their names to the execution, and delivery of every deed.

In all cases it is advisable that the grantor should acknowledge the deed, but if he be dead, or cannot appear, it may be proved by the oath or affirmation of one or more of the witnesses, who were present at the execution thereof.

If the grantor and witnesses are dead, the hand writing of the latter may be proved by oath or affirmation, but when that proof cannot be had then the hand writing of the grantor may be proved in like manner.

Deeds made out of the state, may be acknowledged by the grantors, or proved by one or more of the witnesses thereto, before any mayor, chief magistrate, or officer of the city, town, or place where executed, and certified under the common or public seal of such city, town, or place, the officer taking care to certify the private examination of the wife as aforesaid.

Bonds, specialties, letters of attorney, and other powers in writing, require two or more witnesses, and if executed out of the state, must be proved by them before any mayor, chief magistrate, or officer of the city, town, or place where executed, and certified under the common or public seal of the said city, &c.

Letters of attorney for the sale of lands or other estates must expressly give power to sell, and convey, in fee simple or otherwise, according to the nature of the estate intended to be conveyed, and may be acknowledged or proved out of the state, and certified as aforesaid, or acknowledged by the constituent or proved by one of the witnesses, before a judge or justice of this state.

Sale of lands, &c. under power of attorney, must be made while the power is in force, and such power shall be accounted in force until the agent has notice of countermand, revocation, or death of the constituent.

If the wife is a party to the power of attorney, she must acknowledge it in the same manner as a deed.

Assignment of bonds, and specialties, must be under hand and seal, and before two or more credible witnesses, who are required to subscribe their names as such.

Alms House and House of Employment.

The Philadelphia Alms House and House of Employment was erected in the year 1766 and 1767, on the square between Spruce and Pine and Tenth and Eleventh streets from Delaware, is inclosed by a board fence.

The western building is 180 feet by 40, two stories high, of brick, in the form of an L, for the accommodation of the men, and is under the superintendance of the Steward.

The eastern building is of the same form and dimensions, appropriated for the women and children, and under the superintendance of the Matron.

A turret, four storys high, is attached to the corners of each of the above buildings for the accommodation of the steward, matron, students and officers.

By a statement for a year ending May 1812, the average number of paupers supported in the house during that period was 389 men, 352 women, and 94 children, making 835 persons constantly supported.* The average cost per week for their support and the officers was $ 1. 28; the total expenditures of the house for that year amounted to $ 56,000. The tax levied was $100,000, for the support of the house and for the use of the guardians of the city and districts to pay pensioned poor, and for bastard children at nurse, &c.

The sick and surgical patients are lodged in large spacious rooms seperate from each other, the cells are allotted for the maniacs of which there are generally from twenty-five to thirty-five of both sexes. There are also comfortable wards appropriated for the aged, blind, lame, &c. and the garrets of the buildings are plastered and occupied by the convalescents; in one of those garretts there has been frequently upwards of 160 persons lodged at one time therein.

The managers have always been very attentive to the sick in procuring sufficient assistance for them, especially in providing careful nurses, of which there are generally 10 or 12 in the house, besides their assistants; it is also enjoined upon the steward and matron to see that the nurses &c. treat the unfortunate persons under their care, with all possible humanity and attention, and are faithful to the charge assigned them.

The sick, &c. have, besides the daily visits of three respectable students appointed by the managers who reside in the house, the assistance of seven physicians of known

* At the erection of the house the number intended to be accommodated was 500; since then the city and districts have increased so rapidly, that the poor have likewise increased to such an extent that 1000 persons and upwards have been in the house at one time.

abilities, that reside in the city or districts, who almost every day visit the house and give their advice gratis; there is an apothecary's shop in the house under the charge of the junior student, beside a large airy building has been lately completed for amputations and surgical operations—in short, the sick and the distressed are not better attended and provided for in any other hospital of the size, than in this.

The convalescents are employed at various work. The tradesmen in the factory at making shoes, clothing, soap, candles, carpenter and blacksmiths work. The women at spinning, knitting, sewing, &c. Those that have no trade, are employed at picking oakum and various work in the house.

The factory is a long brick building, one story high, erected on the centre of the square, under a superintendant. The quantity of goods manufactured some years past, has been very considerable, but the profits arising therefrom not answering the expectations of the managers, they have thought it prudent to curtail the making so great a quantity. There was manufactured in the year 1809 upwards of 40,000 yards of different kind of cotton and linens, a quantity of which was cotton bagging.

From a statement made for a year, ending May 1812, there appears to have been wove 22,031 yards, chiefly flax and cotton sheeting, tow and flax linen, check, diaper, linsey, flannel, a few pieces cotton stripe, &c. near 12,000 lbs. of flax hatchelled—1271 pairs of men's, women's and children's shoes—several hundred weight of flax spun, and likewise cotton and wool carded, besides a quantity and variety of other articles manufactured and made for sale, and for the use of the institution.

There are 34 guardians of the poor, for the city of Philadelphia, the township of the Northern Liberties and district of Southwark, who appoint 8 of their number to superintend the house, four from the city and two from each district, who divide themselves by lot into two classes, one of which go out every six months; their places are supplied by a new election from the body of the guardians, so that four are appointed every six months and vacancies are filled by new elections. The time by law for holding their election is in the months of May and November.

The managers meet at the Alms House every Monday in the afternoon, and on such other days as they may think necessary, to inspect into the state of all matters relating to the house, and give such directions concerning the same, as to them may appear useful and expedient with the design of the institution, to receive the reports of their committees, and such reports as the steward may think proper to communicate to them; they have power to bind out poor children as apprentices to lawful ages, viz. boys to the age of 21 and girls 18 years; also, disorderly persons, who by their vices have become sick and chargeable—to inspect and pass all bills for purchases made on account of the house, and do all other matters relating to the institution. They also divide themselves into Committees for the better regulation of the house, such as the—

Visiting Committee, consisting of two members, who serve weekly in rotation, and meet twice a week, to inspect the different apartments of the house, and give such directions as appear to them necessary and useful, to grant leave of absence, and discharge paupers, &c. They make their report in writing to the board every Monday.

Manufacturing Committee, consists of four members who serve for six months, and meet every Wednesday afternoon, and the direction of this department generally devolves upon them, such as fixing the prices of all goods manufactured, or raw articles, order the purchase of such things as may be wanted for the establishment, to fix the prices of the workmen, to keep an account and correct minutes of their proceedings, and to report the same to the board of managers every Monday.

Clothing Committee, of two members, who serve in rotation for one month, and meet every Thursday afternoon, who direct such clothing to be distributed as they may think needful and necessary.

A provision and a fuel Committee, is also appointed for the purshase of all provisions and fuel, that may be wanted for the house, who also report to the Board.

The Steward, is chosen by a majority of all the managers, and removed by them at their pleasure, provided three-fourths agree thereto. He has the general superintendance and care of the house in all its various departments (except such as is especially entrusted to the matron) he is to enforce all the Bye Laws and regulations of the managers, at their stated meeting to report the ingress and egress of the paupers, stating those that have died, eloped, or otherwise; also, an account of all receipts and expenditures, to present all bills for payment, a list of all such article as may be wanted, in short, to communicate all information which he may deem necessary for the interest and benefit of the institution. To take charge of all the goods manufactured, and all things whatever brought into the house; and to see or have them delivered out or sold, agreeably to orders of the managers, to pay strict attention to cleanliness, and to see that order is kept, and that the paupers attend to their different employments, and all such matters as are necessary for the good and well ordering of an institution of this kind.

The Matron, is chosen and removed in like manner as the steward, she has the charge of the females and children, she has the like injunctions as the steward, in respect to order, cleanliness of the house, &c.

No person is admitted into the house (as a pauper) without an order signed by one of the Guardians, neither can any one be admitted that is known to labour under any kind of infectious disease, and all persons admitted who are capable of working, are employed as well to inure them to labour, as to contribute toward their support; those who behave disorderly are punished by a confinement in the cells upon bread and water, according to the offence, but for no longer a term than one week, or if the managers think proper to proceed against them before a magistrate, there to be dealt with according to law. No spirituous liquor is suffered to be introduced, unless ordered by the managers.

The children when they arrive at a proper age are taught in the house to read and write; public worship is held every Sabbath, for those who chose to attend.

The gate is opened throughout the year at sun rise, and closed from October to March at 8 o'clock, and the remained of the year at 9 o'clock.

Managers, for six months, ending May 1813. Alexander W. Johnston, president; Joseph Lee, Samuel Fox, Israel Grice Roberts, for city. Samuel Grice, David Shuster, for Northern Liberties. Samuel Humphreys, Andrew W. Prevost, for Southwark.

Steward, Samuel Mason, salary $800. Matron, Martha Inslee, $400, they and their families are also found in every thing except clothing.

Philadelphia Museum.

IN THE UPPER APARTMENTS OF THE STATE HOUSE.

This splendid establishment for the display of the works of Nature and Art, is the fruit of individual perseverance, now rendered worthy of the patronage it receives from the state legislature.

No museum in Europe contains a better collection of quadrupeds and birds, the latter of which is unrivalled in beautiful arrangement and appropriate decorations; nor is there any where to be seen a more extensive gallery of original portraits, of characters rendered interesting during the American revolution, or by their talents and genius in arts and sience both in Europe and America. The collection of portraits was first begun by Mr. Charles Wilson Peale, and has been continued by his son Rembrandt, especially with many of the most distinguished characters in Europe; besides this, the fishes, insects, minerals, and numerous miscellaneous curiosities, render it the resort of all strangers. It is here professor Barton makes his demonstrations in natural history to his pupils.

The museum has lately undergone a general improvement, in the arrangement and display of the articles, the extention of the rooms, and particularly the addition of the mammoth and other skeletons, Indian figures, dresses, canoes, spears, bows, arrows, tools, Grecian busts, &c.

All the articles that were in the marine room are now handsomely displayed in an upper apartment, and their place occupied by the stupendous skeleton of the mammoth, Indian figures, &c. The long room is consequently disembarrassed of several projecting cases which impeded the movement of company, and interfered with that neatness of display which now prevails. The quadruped room is much improved and the anatomical curiosities are arranged in an apartment by themselves.

The new series of portraits are better displayed, and the old series put into complete order. The whole establishment comprises a magazine of facts and knowledge calculated to interest every class in the community, and to inspire that curiosity by which it has grown and must continue to be supported.

During the winter season, it is elegantly illuminated on the evenings of Tuesday and Thursday, and much resorted to by strangers as well as citizens, as a place of rational and instructive recreation.

Philadelphia Academy—Formerly the College and Academy of Philadelphia, is situated near 40 North Fourth-street; established, and is still conducted by the Rev. James Abercrombie, D. D. The system of instruction given in it, is peculiarly calculated to form an accomplished English education, either preparatory to the study of the learned languages and other colegiate studies with a view to any one of the learned professions; or, to an immediate engagement in the active pursuits of business, English grammar, according to the principles of Murray, Lowth, &c. the arts of reading, writing, arithmetic, composition, public speaking, the principles of natural history, geography and logic—the elements of the mathematicks, book-keeping, merchants accounts, surveying, mensuration, navigation, &c. &c. constitute the course; during which, the precepts and the principles of Christianity, according to the catechisms of the various religious societies, are inculcated. An annual public examination and commencement are held, when those students who are found worthy to receive the honours of the institution, are publicly presented by the director with a certificate of their proficiency. The most accomplished and experienced assistants are employed in the different departments of the institution, which is at present in a very flourishing condition, and justly receives the most general and liberal patronage.

During the winter season a course of lectures, and practical instruction in elocution, is given by the director to young men intended for the liberal professions.
